

HISTORICAL VALUES COMMITTEE REPORT
September 27, 1960

The Arch Street Business Men's Association requested a plaque for Loxley Court. It was suggested that the Association be encouraged to erect a marker, submitting the text thereof to the Philadelphia Historical Commission for approval and the design of the marker to the Art Commission for its approval, indicating the importance of the court. The Committee was of the opinion, however, that this would not be advisable and countered with the recommendation that the Association purchase a plaque for each of the certified houses in the Court.

Five houses in Lombard Street, 1037, 1039, 1041, 1043 and 1045, are recommended for certification.

The Committee also recommends the house at the N. E. corner of Juniper and Locust Streets, built by Wilson Eyre, jr., about 1885, be certified.

The first two paragraphs of Dr. Nichols' report were approved. After some discussion it was moved and seconded that the certification of the Wilson Eyre house at the N. E. corner of Juniper & Locust Streets be tabled. When the Guidebook to Philadelphia buildings being prepared by the AIA for its centenary celebration in April 1961 is completed, the building designed by the architects, whose design work was done between 1850 - 1900 will be reviewed and considered for certification at that time.
